

Aga Khan Award for Architecture

BUILDING FOR A BETTER LIFE

Monday, 4th August 2014

17:30 – 18:30

On behalf of the Aga Khan Award for Architecture, you are cordially invited to join us for a viewing of the exhibition “Building for a Better Life” at the Trade Exhibition (DEC). The exhibition includes a survey of programmes of the Aga Khan Development Network that seek to have a positive impact on the built environment. It includes the winners of the 2013 Aga Khan Award for Architecture, which encompass a bridge in Morocco and a hospital in the Sudan; several conservation programmes and public parks undertaken in the developing world by the Aga Khan Historic Cities Programme; and a preview of two new projects in Toronto, Canada – the Aga Khan Museum, which was de-signed by UIA Gold Medal winner Fumihiko Maki, and the Ismaili Centre, designed by UIA Gold Medal winner Charles Correa, as well as the park between them, which was designed by Vladimir Djurovic.
